The most important ethical issues in criminal justice highlight the need for equitable justice that is free from bias or error as much as possible. Within each category of the criminal justice system, there are different ethical issues to consider.

The ethical pressures that criminal justice organizations face differ considerably from the ones facing local governments and other public institutions. Given the amount of authority in the hands of most criminal justice professionals and the potential impact on citizens, it's vital that those working in the criminal justice system understand why ethics are so important.

This webinar will look at the varying impact of Commissions, Ethics Legislation and the application of the Criminal Code to ethics issues in Government. We will look at recent case law and legislation and their Relevance to recent ethical dilemmas.
