Green procurement is the practice of purchasing goods and services that have minimal to no strain on environmental resources. This process is a commitment to reducing environmental impact over the life cycle, rather than simply purchasing based on price and quality.

To promote sustainable practices in local government during environmentally challenging times, consider these strategies for green purchasing:

- Establish a green purchasing policy that prioritizes eco-friendly products.
- Conduct a life-cycle assessment to evaluate the environmental impact of products.
- Collaborate with suppliers who demonstrate sustainable practices and certifications.
- Train staff on the importance of green purchasing and how to implement it.
- Monitor and report on the effectiveness of green purchasing initiatives regularly.
- Engage the community to raise awareness and support for sustainable procurement efforts.

This webinar will look at the latest developments, legislation and resources connecting with “Green Purchasing”
